

Jane Whynot Bio/Affiliation

Dr. Jane Whynot is currently a partner at Goss Gilroy Inc. (GGI) and leads their social-cultural line of business. Dr. Whynot has provided performance measurement and evaluation expertise through consulting engagements to both the federal government and the non-profit sector for almost 25 years. She holds a PhD from the Institute of Feminist and Gender Studies at the University of Ottawa; her area of research regards the integration of Gender-based Analysis Plus (GBA+) in the Canadian federal government evaluation system. This research builds on a Masters of Assessment and Evaluation (University of Melbourne), and a graduate certificate in Policy and Program Evaluation (Carleton University). She currently holds adjunct status at Carleton University and teaches Qualitative Methods in Evaluation. Dr. Whynot has served the Canadian Evaluation Society (CES) National Capital Chapter in various roles including Secretary, Vice-President, President and Past-President until 2019. In this capacity, she was one of the co-chairs of the CES national evaluation conference in 2014. Dr. Whynot has been honoured as the recent recipient of multiple awards including the 2020 National Service to the Society, and the 2021 Karl Boudreault Leadership in Evaluation award.
